Claims 16-24 and 30-44 have been canceled. Claims 1-15 and 25-29 are pending.

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-7, 9, 11, and 12, drawn to nucleic acid encoding SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1.
- II. Claim 8, drawn to Transgenic organism comprising nucleic acid encoding SEQ IDNO: 1, classified in class 800, subclass 2.
- III. Claims 10, drawn to antibody against SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 530, subclass 387.1.
- IV. Claims 13-15, drawn to a method for detecting nucleic acid encoding SEQ IDNO: 1 via hybridization, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
- V. Claim 25, drawn to a method for screening a compound that binds to SEQ ID NO:1, classified in class 435, subclass 7.1.
- VI. Claim 26, drawn to a method for screening a compound that modulates the activity of SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 435, subclass 7.1.
- VII. Claim 27, drawn to a method for screening a compound that changes the expression of a nucleic acid that encodes to SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
- VIII. Claim 28, drawn to a method for assessing toxicity of a compound via a nucleic acid that encodes to SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
- IX. Claim 29, drawn to method of diagnosing disease via antibody against SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 530, subclass 387.1.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

The nucleic acid of Invention I and the antibody of Invention III are related by virtue of the protein that is encoded by the nucleic acid and necessary for the production of the antibody. However, the nucleic acid itself is not necessary for antibody production and both are wholly different compounds having different compositions and functions. Therefore, these Inventions are distinct.

The nucleic acid of Invention I and the transgenic organism of Invention II are related because the organism comprises the nucleic acid.. However, the products are wholly different and therefore these Inventions are patentably distinct.

The antibody of Invention III is not used to make the transgenic organism of Invention II and both are distinct products in structure and in function. Therefore, Inventions II and III are patentably distinct.

Inventions I and Inventions IV, VII, and VIII are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as in the methods of any one of IV, VII, or VIII, or in the recombinant production of protein.

The nucleic acid of Invention I is not used in the methods of Inventions V, VI, or IX.

Therefore, Invention I is patentably distinct from Inventions V, VI, and IX.

The transgenic organism of Invention II is not used in any one of the methods of Inventions IV-IX and therefore is patentably distinct therefrom.

Invention III and Invention IX are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as in the detection of protein.

The antibody of Invention III is not used in the methods of IV-VIII and is therefore patentably distinct therefrom.

The methods of Inventions IV-IX require different products and/or steps and have different endpoints. Therefore, Inventions IV-IX are patentably distinct.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
